The 1952 PENNSMAN

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF PENNSBURY HIGH SCHOOL

Winging our way through...

The Pennsbury falcon flies on high! Finally, our symbol has reached maturity and is no longer nesting. True enough, it took three long years of numerous makeshift accommodations in churches, community halls, private homes, and elementary buildings for it to feel its wings, but thanks to the citizens of the area, the Building Authority of the state of Pennsylvania, the untiring efforts of the School Board and our superintendent, Mr. Medill Bair, it is now soaring onward and upward.

It is hard to realize, as we wander through a maze of shining hallways, over highly polished floors, and among satin-finished blond furnishings set off by tinted venetian blinds and glass brick, that only since October 1, 1951, has this luxurious setting been ours. We are grateful to all concerned in this undertaking for giving it to us.

Buildings and equipment do not, of course, make a successful school. Inspiration, imagination, and industry must enter into the picture. As the years go on, may these qualities continue to characterize our system. May the Pennsbury falcon continue to fly on high!

Hovering around us, but never doing our flying for us, have been this year's faculty of approximately forty-five members and four practice teachers.

Typical of teen-agers the country over, we at times resented their advice, the work deadlines they set up, the projects they requested, the discipline they accorded. We were particularly resentful of their means of punishment the afternoons following Skip Day (February 25) when about forty of us seniors were detained until 5:00 p. m. after school and deprived of participation in all activities.

But compare them to any other faculty—and they are second to none. They especially endeared themselves to us the night of the Faculty-Varsity Basketball Game despite, darn it, the fact they won. They endeared themselves to us as sponsors of dances, clubs, and plays. They endeared themselves to us on the Washington trip. Yes, we must admit we have caused them to lose many feathers, but, bless their hearts, their confidence in our gaining our wings never wavered.

Student Council President Kay Balser and School Board President Forrest Jobs smooth the mortar at the Cornerstone Laying Ceremonies, January 9, 1952.

PRESENTING...

Mr. Medill Bair, Regional Superintendent, is caught in a formal pose.

For their leadership...

The Administration. . .

Mr. Forrest Jobes, though tremendously busy as the vice-president of a large firm, always has time to preside over school board meetings until the wee hours of the morning so that Pennsbury students will have the best education possible.

"Will you ever forget the time 'Medieval' balled us out? He was always so jolly. I never thought he could get angry."

"Nope, and I'll never forget those lectures from 'Father.' Every day we could count on hearing how to study, how to read, how to carry out group process. But you know, now that I look back, he was one of the best teachers we ever had."

Such are the reminiscences we'll indulge in five, ten, fifteen years from now. It is then that we'll realize how much counsel, guidance, and help our elders gave us.

In the Bible there is a verse in Proverbs that reads: "Where there is no vision, the people perish." There must be a school board, an administration, a parent-teachers organization, a faculty with ideas, with modern techniques at their command, with insight into the nature of teen-agers and their problems if a school is to progress. Right now, Pennsbury can be proud of its leaders. If they all continue to remain in the system and if other as alert are added, there is no question that Pennsbury must soar ahead.

Mr. William Ingraham, beneath a cheery smile and a jaunty air, carries the burden of school financing, school maintenance, and student transportation.

Mr. Richard L. Currier, principal, is pictured here breaking into that well-known sincere, warm, confidence-engendering smile. His door is always open to faculty and students alike.

For their guidance.

Regional Superintendent Bair places an American Flag, symbolic of the school's staunch furtherance of democracy, in the cornerstone box, held by Principal Currier. Into the cornerstone went also the names of all students and faculty presently engaged in P. H. S., the school colors, and other small items for posterity sake.

Mrs. Carfagno looks questioningly at one of her students in Latin class. Could be he's daydreaming?

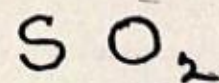

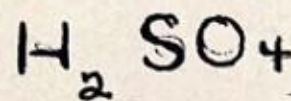

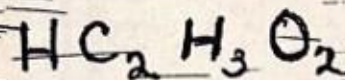

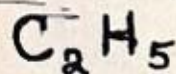

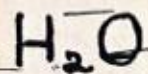

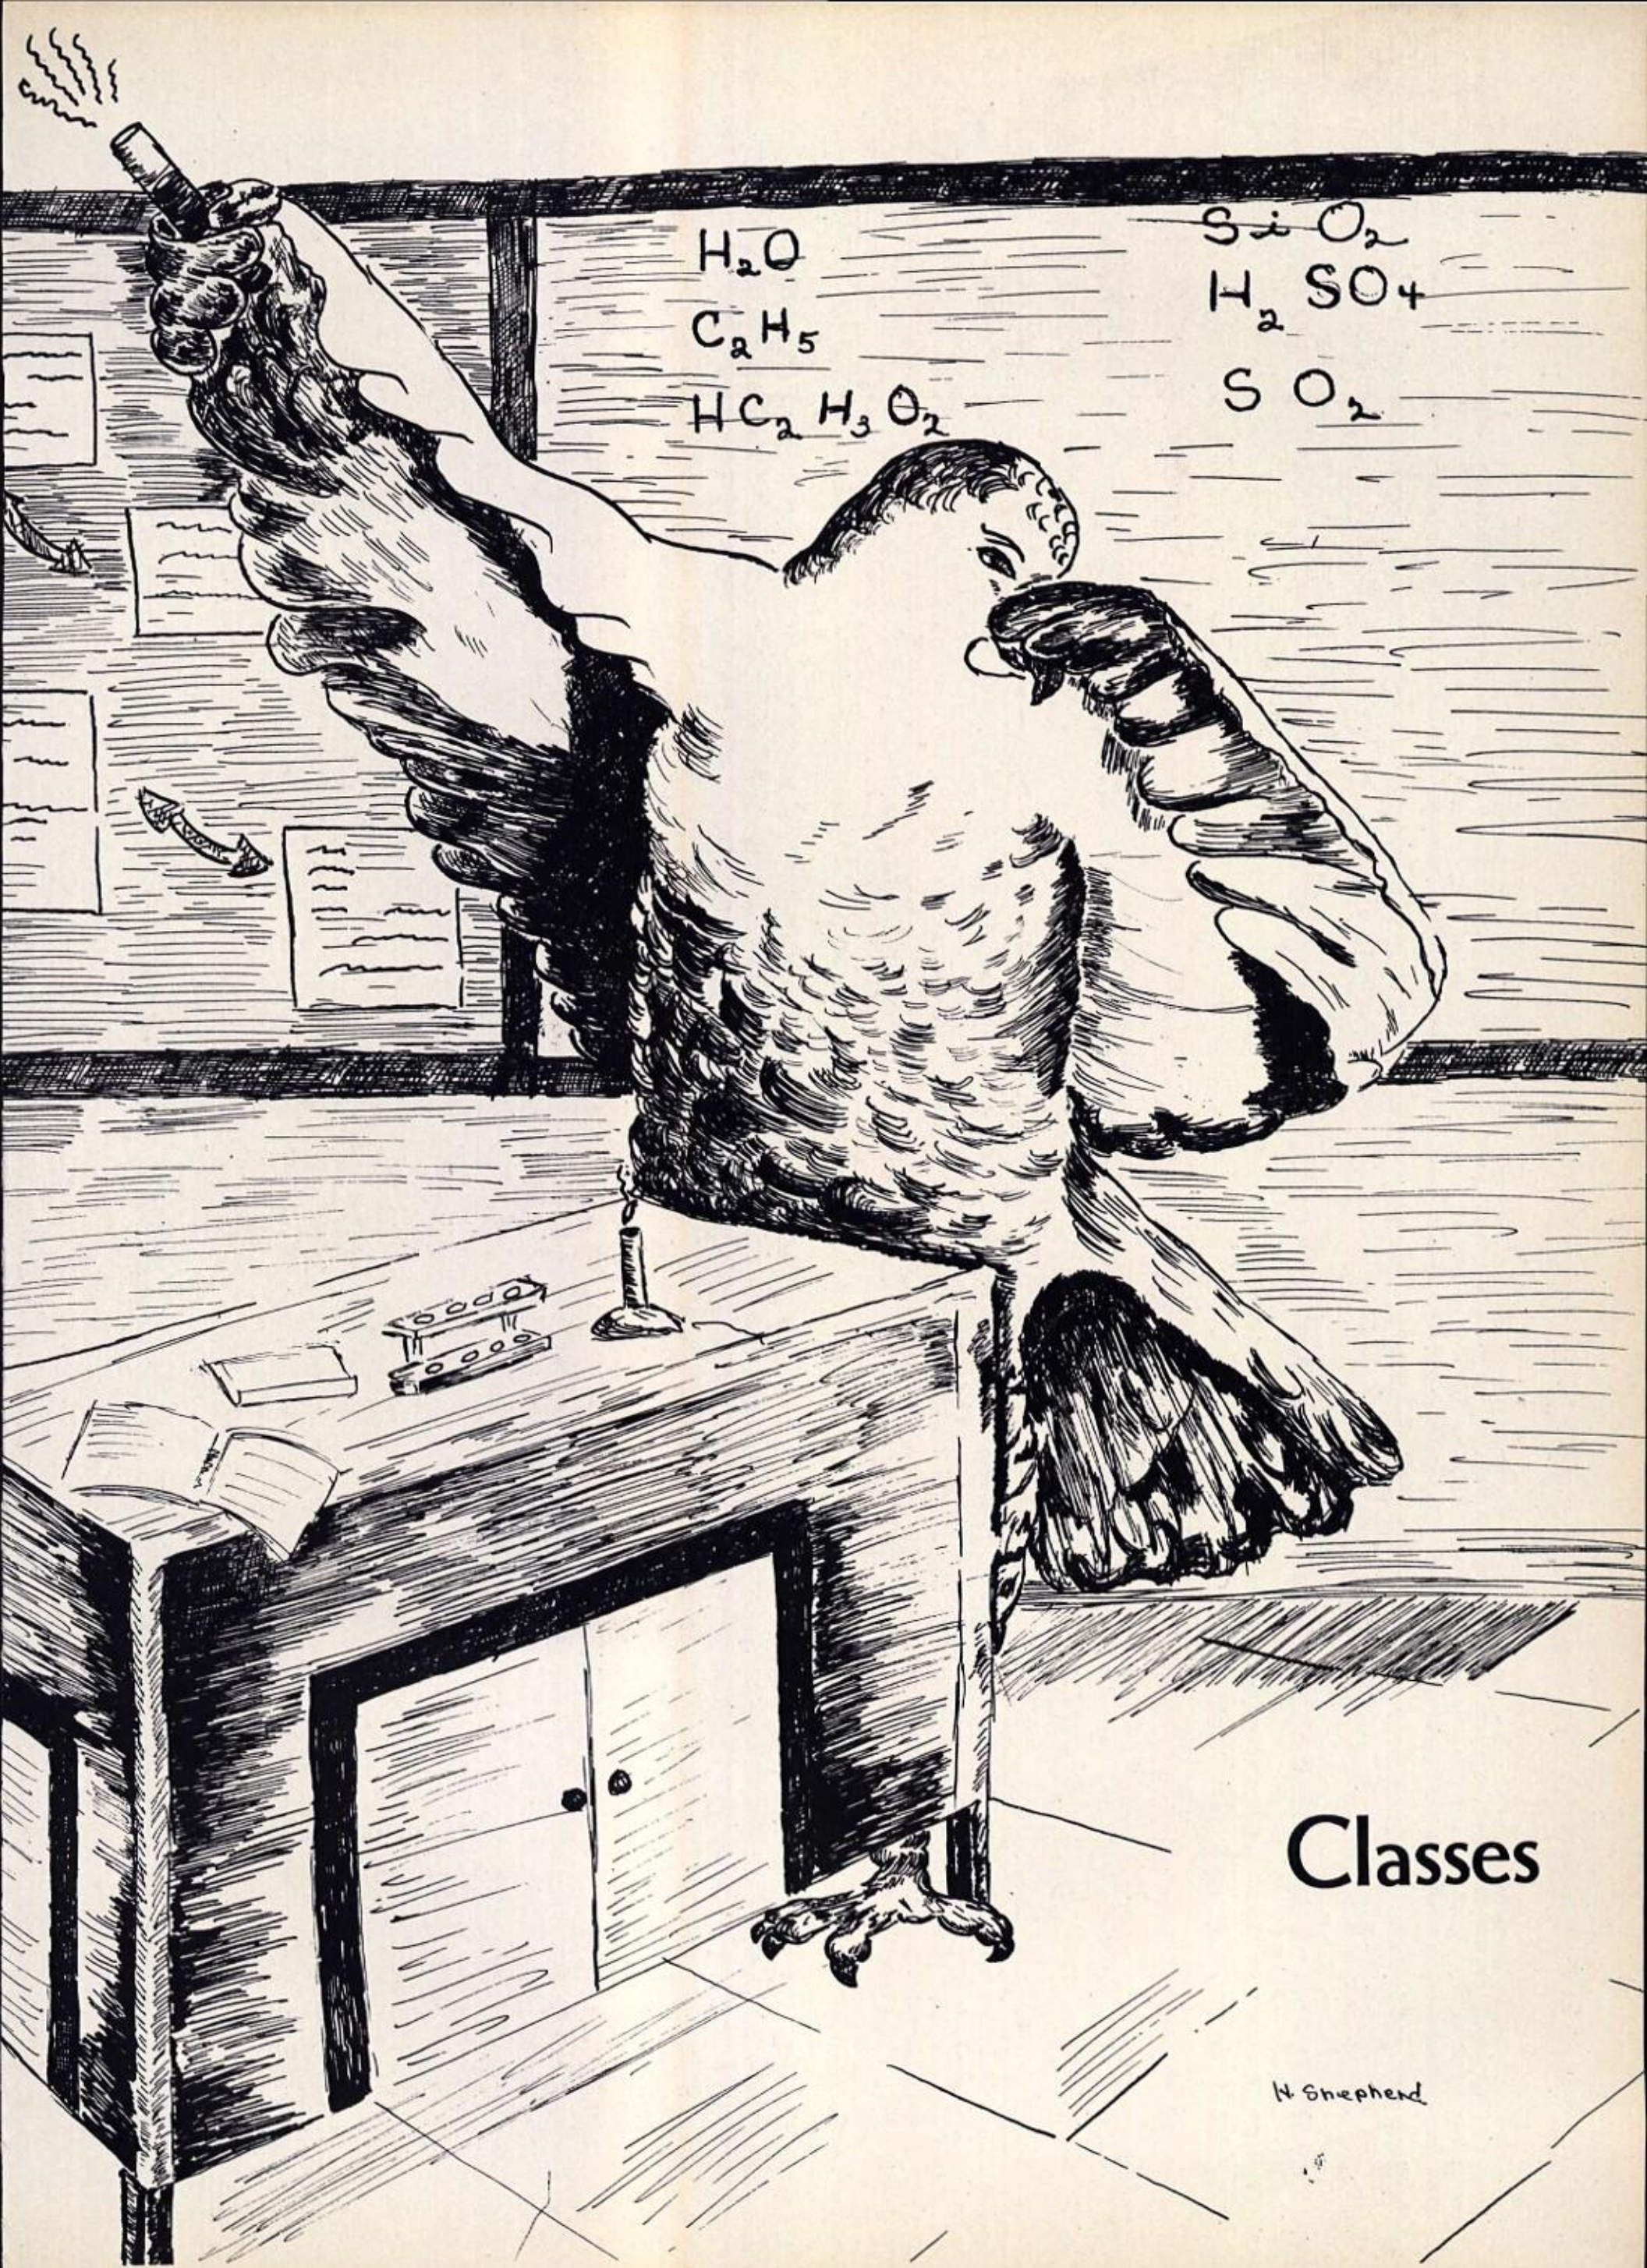

Gee—we're finally out in front of the flock as seniors. What a wonderful feeling to realize that we belong to the first class to be graduated from the new school.

We know we are leaving favorite classes, gay lunch times, crowded social lives, and all the benefits of the new school facilities only to start at the bottom again, whether we enter college, the armed forces, or the business world. No longer will we be filling memory books with snapshots of teachers, dances, clubs, football, basketball, baseball and field hockey games, classes, and moments of fun.

We leave all these wonderful experiences for the fledgling falcons to shed their down in. We have an idea that, they, like us, will periodically fly back home to roost in the old nest.

Chris Wiegand, president of Pennsbury's chapter, National Honor Society, administers the pledge to incoming members at initiation ceremonies held in February. Each year all students in grades 10, 11, and 12 who have maintained an average of 85 in scholastic achievement become eligible. Candidates are further screened by the faculty on the bases of leadership, service, and character.

Candy sales are booming! Helping the senior class raise money for their annual trip to Washington are Chris Bennett, Lyn Van Aken, Bill Anderson, Carol Smiley, Mary Lou Mason, and Mr. Ingraham.

P for Pennsbury! So spells out the Band at the Morrisville football game.

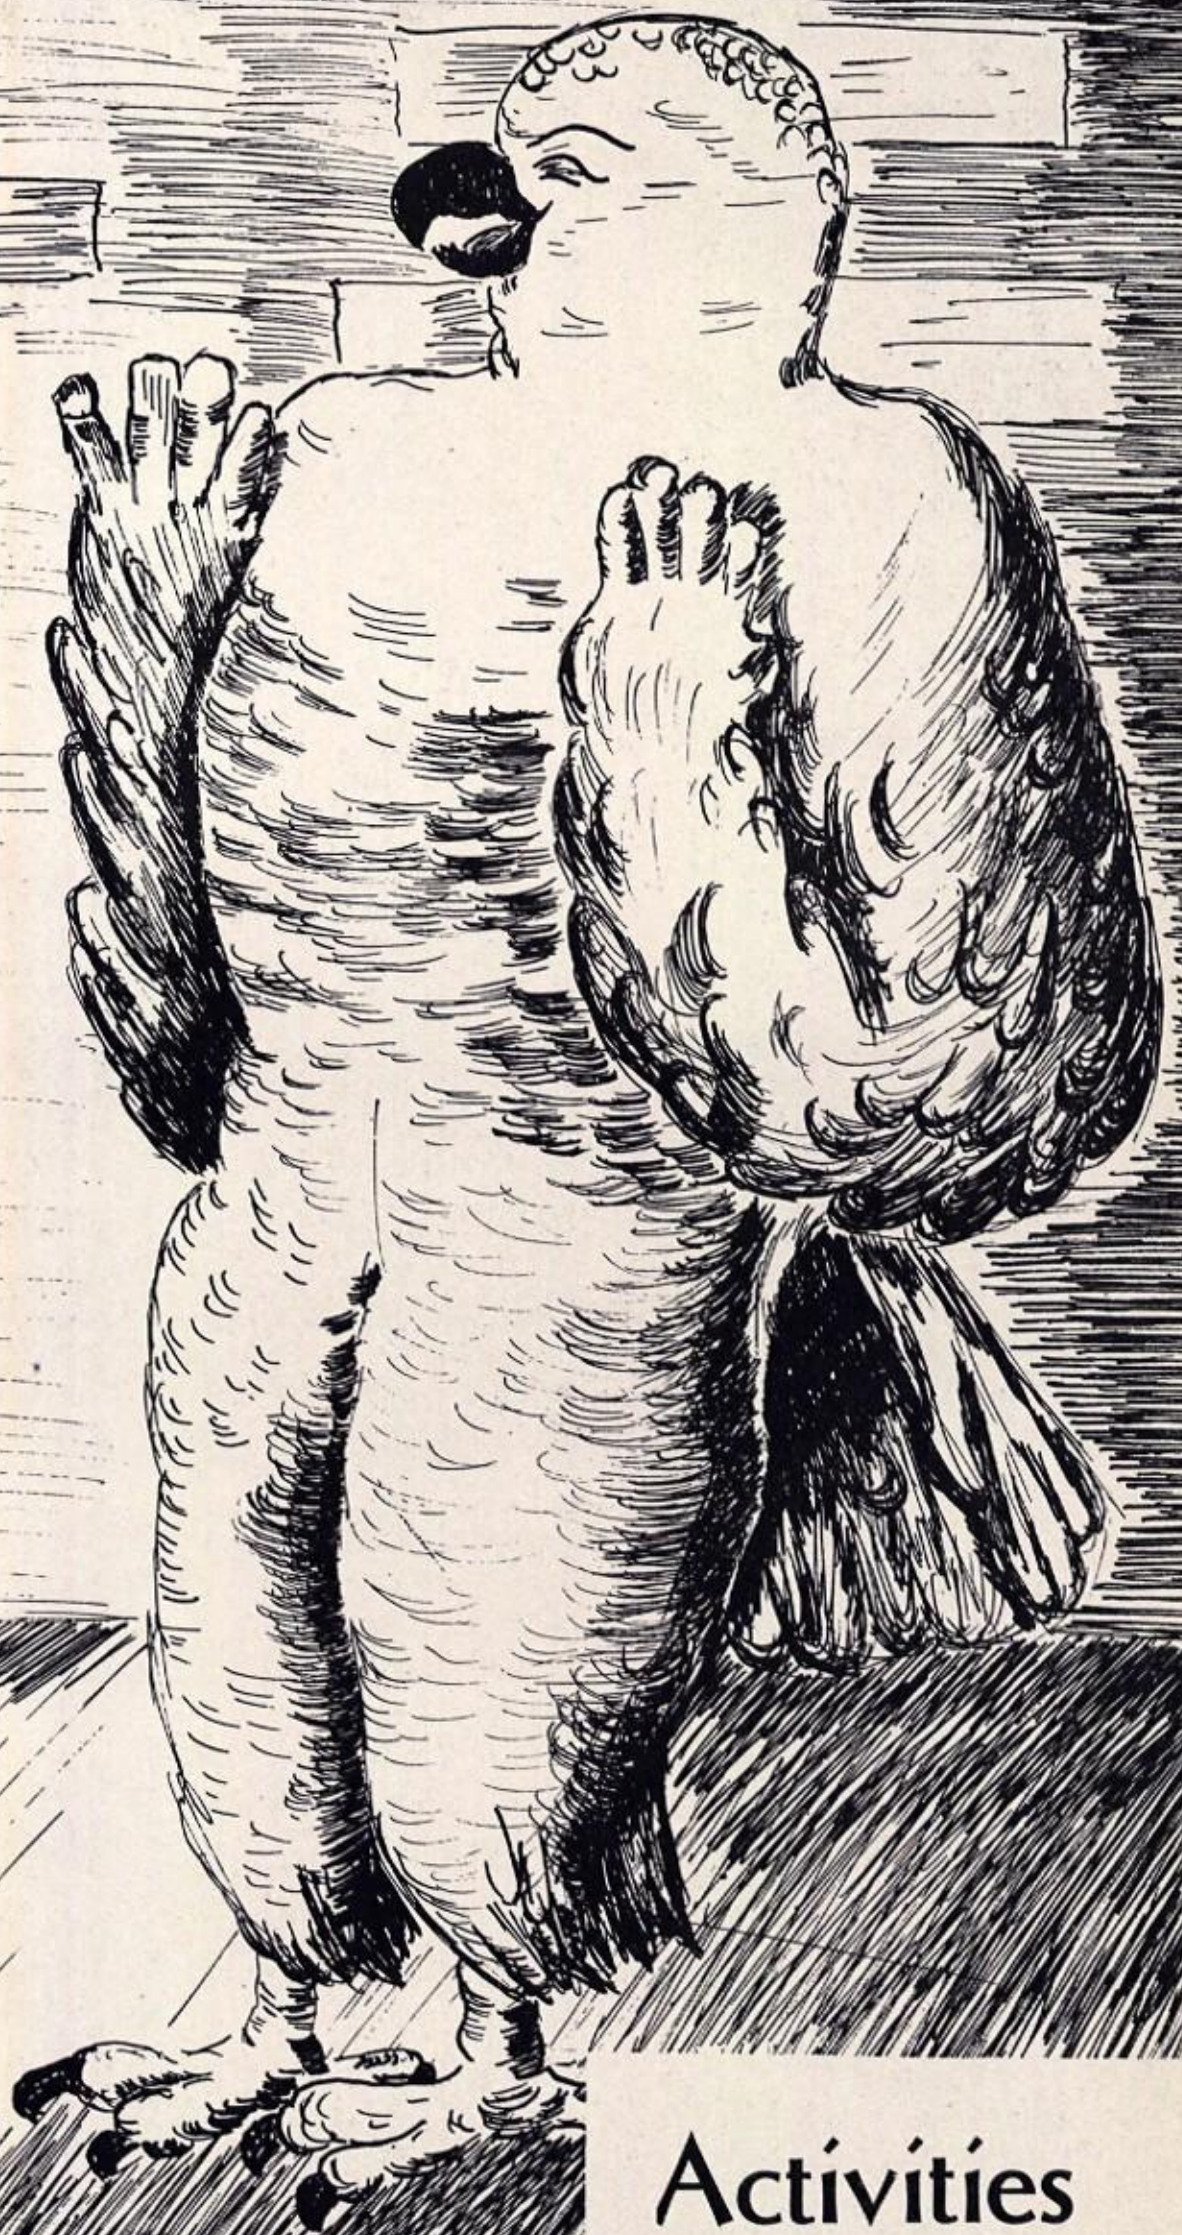

Learning about our community, building a mythical community, going through the motions of "group process" in biology, learning in physics how to study, having apparatus exercises in gym, and reading four books each report period—buying lunch in the new cafeteria, going to canteen, seeing Pennsbury defeat Morrisville in basketball, performing in a big play, attending our first big dance, baking our first cake in Chef Club, being elected to National Honor Society—crowding onto buses, yelling excitedly at noontime, working after school in the darkroom, rattling over the roads in our first jalopy, filling lockers with pin-ups, idolizing that man teacher, looking starry-eyed into the eyes of our first love! These are the guide-lights in the lives of us Pennsbury falcons as we glide through the air from grade seven to grade twelve. Our only regret is that the day is not long enough to crowd into it all we would like to swoop into.

Tripping the light fantastic are R. Curley, R. Wiese, V. Wiley, H. Briggs, J. Hunter, and L. Williams.

Mr. Bachman points out a new football play to a few members of the Spectator Sports Club, which aims at enlightening laymen on the intricacies of various sports. The club program includes many periods of movies and some periods of lectures.

Members of the William Penn Club take a tour through the famous Pennsbury Manor, summer home of William Penn after whom the school is named. Shown here are L. Marek, T. Fergione, W. Bowman, D. DiRosa, and D. Arleth. Aim of this club is to give interested students a chance to pursue current events and history more intensely.

*Experience is
of thought...*

Pat Van Hart and Marge Arch look gleefully the new gym suits being placed on exhibit one of the members of the Exhibits Club, who handles window dressing of the two large exhibit windows in the foyer.

Members of the Amateur Photography Club practice taking pictures of their confreres. Left to right: R. Binner, R. Coia, J. Parto, M. A. Edwards, G. Dunham, E. Reimer, F. Landis, J. Smiley, D. White, D. Patton, and R. Kay. It is hoped that the members of this club will become sufficiently trained in all phases of photography that they can apply for work on the yearbook staff.

*...Thought is the

A portion of the members of the Plastic Arts Club gather around Sponsor Beuchler as he explains how to cut plastic into desired shapes.

Getting and putting into practice tips on good grooming are V. Corsner, D. Corse, N. Bixler, P. Davis, M. Roberts, D. McGee, J. Kimble, and C. Wilson.

Spreading Our Feathers

Testing Our Wings

Mr. Rohrbaugh puts the track team through the daily workout.

Ready . . . get set . . . GO! About to take off are G. Ramsey, J. Gibson, and D. Doheny.

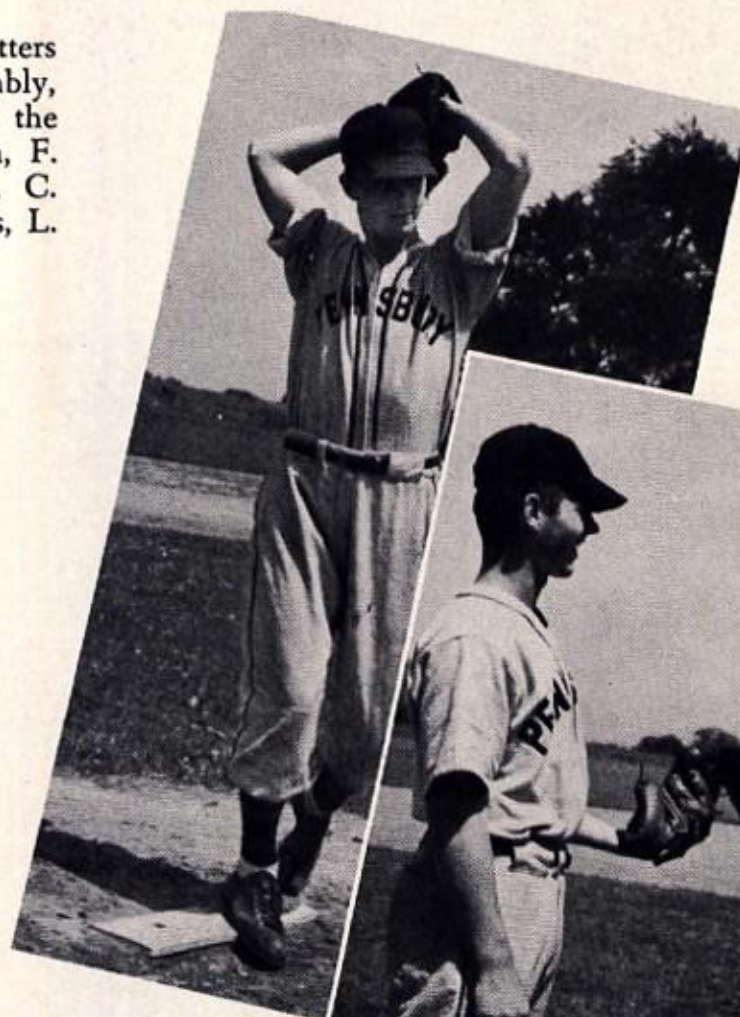

BASEBALL TEAM OF '51

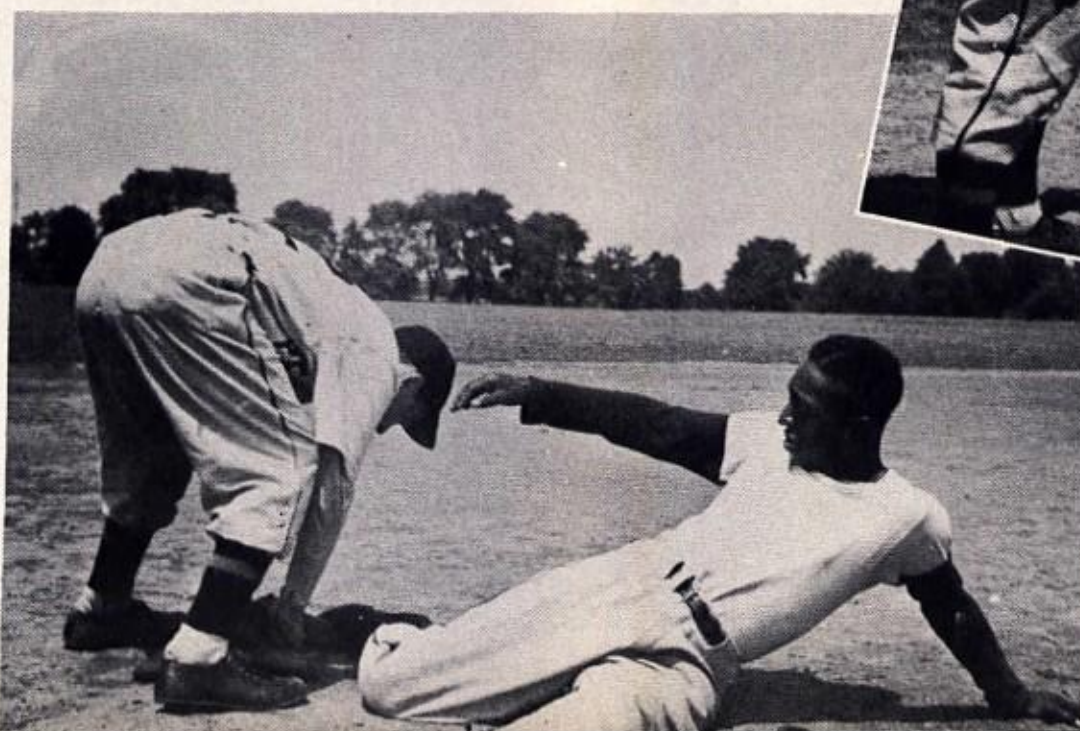

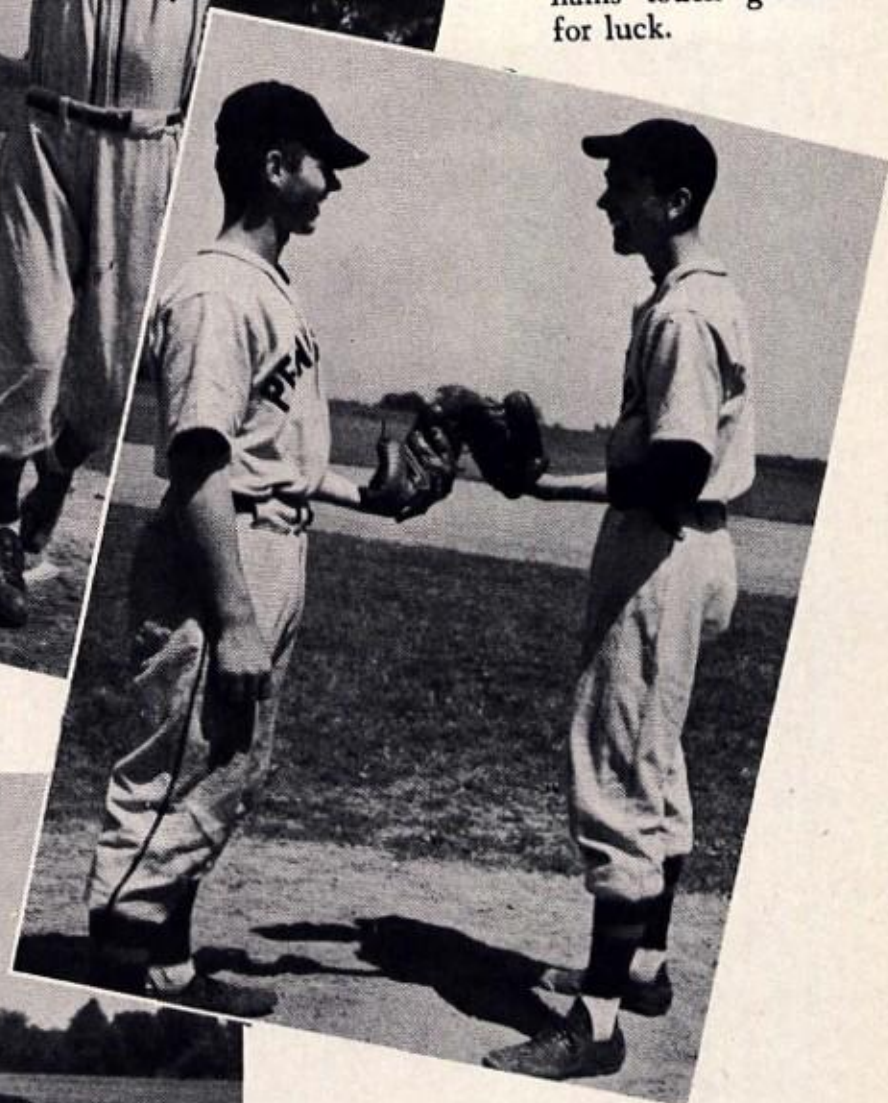

The baseball team of '51 line up to receive their letters from Coach Bachman at the annual Awards Assembly, held in the open air last year so that all members of the school could be present. Left to right: Mr. Bachman, F. Hunter, G. Mayo, R. Bray, W. Bray, H. Powell, C. Saunders, E. Miller, A. Reed, H. Briggs, D. Williams, L. Powell, C. Bennett, and J. Baziow.

the Game!

For the first time in the history of Pennsbury High School, training for swimming meets has started. Miss Betty Ann Nielsen is coach of the girls' team, while Mr. James Egli is in charge of the boys' group. Both teams practice at the Christian Association buildings in Trenton. Neither group participated this year in meets because of the inexperience of the swimmers, but it is expected that a schedule will be set up for next year's season.

BOYS' SWIMMING TEAM

Lined up for roll call by Mr. James Egli, Coach, are Turner, Wright, Goncarz, Ellis, Goodstien, Griffin, Solarski, Kay, Rathmiel, and Kafes.

We demonstrate what we can do Sportswise at Sports Night...

Geraldine Carver and Chris Bennett, captains of the victorious Orange Team, receive the special trophy from its donor, Mr. George Dougherty, Saturday night, March 22, 1952.

Actually, as the title implies, the event takes place two nights in the school gymnasium. One night is devoted to girls' performances; the other, to boys'. At the conclusion of the second night, points are tallied and the highest ranking team is awarded a special trophy.

Two boys struggle hard for their team in the sack race.

The cheerleaders prance out to cheer for their respective teams.

A spectacular tumbling event!

WE HAVE AMBITION, TOO!

FAIRLESS HILLS, PENNSYLVANIA

Yes, we have plenty of ambition—to be a model community, and a town of good neighbors in this wonderful Bucks County.

But your ambitions are even more important to the future of this area—your ambitions to be good doctors, engineers or accountants.

Or to be good nurses, teachers or housewives.

Or to be just good citizens.

Whatever your ambitions, class of '52, we wish you all a full measure of good luck and happiness.
